Lets just say, Tim, one of our illustrious leisure and lifestyle team members was very shocked after receiving his new "Uniform". At least the residents had a good laugh.

April Trivia

It is thought that the name April comes from the Latin word "to open" and describes the trees opening at springtime.

Quote of the Day

In the end, it's not the years in your life that count. It's the life in your years. If you've ever played or watched bingo in a traditional bingo hall or even just dabbled in some online bingo you may have noticed that there are some strange bingo names that you simply don't understand. Calling bingo numbers out isn't as simple as just 1, 2, 3... and you weren't mistaken if you think you may have heard something about little ducks or Winnie the pooh.

How is modern bingo played?

Before we get to the bingo terms, we thought that we'd quickly go over the basics of bingo to refresh your memories or show you what it's about if you've never played before.

There are different kinds of bingo that can be played, but on a whole, it is played by crossing off the numbers that are on your ticket when they are called out. You win the game if you cross off all the numbers on your ticket before anyone else.

The type of game, such as a 90 ball or 75 ball, that you are taking part in will decide the amount of numbers that you have on your ticket. The amount of numbers on your ticket will be the same amount that can be called out by the bingo callers.

Don't be confused by the 'balls' in the name of your game either, it's simply due to the fact that the numbers being called out used to be printed onto balls. However, with the invention of bingo sites, almost all the bingo balls are generated electronically.

Bingo Lingo Number

Back to the "Bingo Lingo". Bingo numbers are often called out in traditional bingo rhymes. If you're new to online bingo, it may be a tad confusing hearing "Two Fat Ladies" or other modern abbreviations and bingo sayings. However, don't be alarmed if your fellow bingo players start using strange terms; bingo is a very sociable game and you simply just have to get to grips with the bingo slang meaning and you'll find yourself understanding in no time.

How did the rhymes originate?

Most of the bingo terms associated with the numbers are rhymes. They were originally used in London in the mid-20th century, where they were used to pass on secret or hidden messages. These rhymes were very quickly picked up by bingo players who used them in the bingo halls to ensure that all 90 letters could be clarified easily when called out. In a big hall, the number 15 and 50 could sound very similar, so they adopted these rhymes/nicknames in order to distinctly tell letter apart. As the use of these nicknames spread, they changed from place to place and some new bingo sayings were added.

Here is a list of the bingo slang meaning with regards to the numbers and other strange words that you might come across if you play bingo.

EDGARLEY HOME INC. RESIDENT'S MEETING March 6th 2024

Present: R. Jordan, R. Williams, A. Brownglass, A. Peden, J. Rhook, J. Humphries, R.

Hamilton, A. Bull, V. Madex, M. Gunther, T. Baugh, E. May, L. Mackie.

Staff: L. Power, T. Crick, R. Mccrae, L. Hornibrook, A. Lee.

Apologies: S. Mcurry.

Meeting begins at 1.35 PM

Previous meeting read and passed, seconded by J. Humphries.

Business arising from previous meeting:

- Residents requested and received the addition of apple pie to menu, are very happy with the results. Hamburgers also added to BBQ Day menu.
- Vegetables still not being drained properly, feedback has again been passed on to kitchen.
- Timing of automatic front door unable to be altered when door is in "alert" mode. However, if someone is to stand near door when residents are entering/exiting, the sensor will remain awake and the door will not shut, leading to easier comings-and-goings.

General Business:

01: Gazebo Delayed: Front yard gazebo construction has been delayed. The gazebo was delivered, but the ground was unsuitable for construction. A concrete slab will have to be poured in before undertaking any further work.

02 Easter Meal: A special Easter meal with steamed cod and toasted hot-cross buns discussed by residents, the idea met with much enthusiasm.

03: Activity Suggestions: Every 3 months Leisure and Lifestyle will be asking for suggestions to improve or alter the activities calendar or bus trips, all ideas welcome.

04: Resident's Meetings: Monthly meetings changed from first Thursday of every month to first Wednesday, better allowing DON Amanda Lee to be present for proceedings.

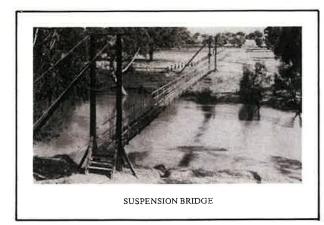

04: Vehicle Step: Edgarley has purchased a portable step to assist residents with stepping onto the bus or into company car.

05: Aged Care Standards: Aged care standards are changing. From the first of June, standards will be changed, streamlined down to a more precise, 7 standard format than before. Standards will promote resident's control over the own care above all else, with feedback being highly encouraged. DON Mandy Lee will be printing out a smaller, easy-to-understand version of these new standards for residents to peruse at their own leisure.

Meeting closed 2.05 PM

THE BRAVE SCHOOLBOYS OF CASTERTON

September 6th, 1920 is a day that will be indelibly marked in the memories of pupils of the Casterton State and Higher Elementary schools. Although officially the first week in spring, turbulent rains had raised the Glenelg River to a dangerous flood level. Football fever was in the air at Casterton. Intense rivalry prevailed between the Federals and the Rainbows, two local clubs.

On Bahgallah Road as school time drew near, and she packed his lunch and waved him goodbye, Mrs. McKenzie warned her son Peter, a boy of eight, to keep well away from the flooded river. As he left his home at the Casterton hotel headquarters and boundary of the Rainbows, Graham "Smiler" Tucker waved to the Paramor boys at the Railway Hotel opposite, headquarters of the Federals, exhorting them to get to school in time for a kick.

When Mr. Charles E. Symes rang the bell for the luncheon break, footballs appeared all over the ground like magic. From the tiny tots of the infant classes to the boys of the high school, King football reigned supreme.

When Mrs. Ada Brilliant stepped warily onto the suspension bridge as she returned for her midday meal from a morning's work at Baxter's, she wondered how much longer the cables would support the wooden platform as the murky brown waters of the flood lapped hungrily around the bridge.

As Gordon Richardson ate his school lunch under the watchful eyes of his father Harry, a blacksmith for Stewart and Smith in Henty Streeet, his eyes turned enviously in the direction of the state school as his mates kicked the football shouting happily to one another.

The school yard was a merry throng as the boys punted and drop kicked the football between the white posts. Suddenly there was a shout of dismay as the football was booted over the fence, rolled down the steep river banks, and was tossed like a cork into the flooded river. But the boys were not to be denied. Jumping the school fence like kangarooos, they charged in a body to the river banks; hoping they could retrieve the football with broken tree branches, but the fury of the flood was too strong. The ball floated swiftly downstream. About four hundred yards from the school, there hung on steel cables attached at both ends to timber poles, the suspension bridge, spanning the Glenelg River. Fifteen boys in a headlong charge raced onto the bridge hoping to regain their precious football.

At about 1.15 p.m. as Myrtle Jeffreys on Bahgallah Road, washed the dishes after her father's midday meal, she pondered as she heard a resounding splash, and high pitched voices coming from the direction of the river.

She also wondered why Norman Holt, a nearby neighbour who worked at Spendloves stores, and who usually cantered his horse quietly back to work, had now galloped headlong down the lane at breakneck speed towards the bridge.

As the fifteen boys on the bridge watched the ball floating towards them, they tipped the bridge slightly, hoping by this means to retrieve the ball. Suddenly and without the slightest warning, the bridge collapsed with a devastating crash, and the boys were flung headlong into the shirling stream. Some more fortunate than others fell closer to the bank and shallow water, and clutching the ti-tree that grew profusely along the bank, scrambled safely ashore.

Peter McKenzie was thrown into the deepest water, and although he struggled valiantly, he was never seen alive again.

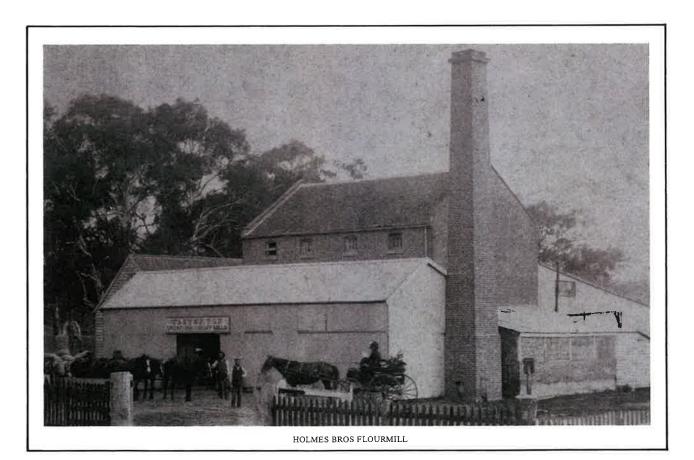

As Keith Miller, a clean cut boy of fourteen, a good all round athlete and strong swimmer, regained his footing on the bank, he could see Graham Tucker, a small boy of eight years, in extreme difficulties and likely to be drowned as well. Without a thought for his own safety he plunged into the deep waters, swam towards the nearly drowned boy, and grasping him by the hair was able to reach an island, and after getting his second wind, brought him safely to the bank.

Whilst this rescue was going on, Fred Clode, another schoolboy, dived into the river, and displaying great presence of mind amidst the panic and confusion that prevailed, brought Keith McDonald, who was also in difficulty, to safety.

Both boys who by then after their long immersion in the water must have been very nearly exhausted, swam once again into the flooded stream and made repeated attempts to find Peter McKenzie, but he poor boy, was beyond human aid and his body was not found till three weeks later near Jackson's bluff, by C. Lewis.

On Anzac Day in 1921, the grateful citizens of Casterton presented Master Keith Miller with a gold watch suitably engraved, and he was also awarded the Bronze Medal of the Royal Humane Society.

For his bravery in rescuing her son, Mrs. Allan McDonald presented Fred Clode with a suitably inscribed gold medal, a well earned tribute from a grateful mother.
